TRAINING STRUCTURE

This Distance Learning course allows for flexible completion of 650 hours of extensive studying. The proposed course is delivered by means of two teaching processes: distance learning along with progress tests. During the training 3 on-site combined lecture sessions are planned.

On-site lectures
The on-site lectures at Goldwings Flight Academy you will have an opportunity to learn from our specialists. Make use of this time to ask questions. A lot of lectures are delivered in the form of workshops where you will master skills needed in your future career as a pilot. The lectures are organized as combined biweekly weekend sessions.

During the lectures you will get to know us and our fleet. Use this time to choose the type of practical course. We view the training process as a whole. By staying with us and continuing the training with the people you know well you will make it more effective. A solid relationship with the instructor is a crucial element of the training and guarantee of effective mastering the piloting skills. Choosing a given practical course option for the CPL(A) licence or Instrument Rating you will be offered a lower price of the theoretical course. The remaining balance up to the special offer price will added to your practical course settlement.

Self-studying
This element is no less important than the work with the lecturers. BRISTOL Ground School set of learning materials is a very important part of this process. It is an e-learning platform which will help you to pass subsequent progress tests. The textbooks and the questions database is a complex source of knowledge for a pilot aspiring to the Airline Transport Pilot Licence.

The self-studying based on the Bristol materials – approx. 80 days with weekend breaks - 550 hours (approx. 40 hours per week).
